

Why Cold Room Servicing Is Essential for Preventing Stock Loss

For any business that relies on chilled storage - restaurants, hotels, butchers, farm shops, growers, market stalls, food manufacturers - your cold room is one of the most valuable assets you own. When it fails, the consequences can be immediate and costly: spoiled stock, lost revenue, and operational downtime. Can you afford it!

Regular cold room servicing isn't just a "nice to have" - it's a reliable way to protect your business from expensive breakdowns and avoidable losses.

- Small Issues Become Big Problems Quickly

Cold rooms run continuously, which means parts wear down faster than many business owners realise. A loose door seal or blocked evaporator might seem minor, but force the system to work harder which then leads to temperature fluctuations and higher energy bills, inevitably breakdowns then occur.

During servicing, we check:

- Door seals and strip curtains
- Evaporator and condenser coils
- Drain lines and fans
- Temperature control accuracy
- Refrigerant levels and leak risks

Catching issues early helps save you from emergency callouts and stock loss.

- Servicing Keeps Your Energy Bills Down

A cold room with dirty coils or a failing fan can use 20–30% more energy, increasing costs month after month without you realising why. Scheduled maintenance keeps systems efficient and stops your energy bills creeping up unnecessarily. ACRS offer a reminder service every 6 months.

- Compliance and Food Safety

Food safety inspections require strict temperature control. Even minor temperature rises can put you at risk of failing compliance checks. Servicing ensures your cold room holds temperature consistently, protecting your food hygiene rating. Regular filter changes are also important not only for compliance but to reduce energy consumption.

- Reduced Breakdown Risk

ACRS's preventative maintenance will always work out cheaper in the long run than an emergency repair. With our servicing it significantly reduces the likelihood of sudden failures, but if something does go wrong, we are always available for breakdown cover to get you back up and running as quickly as possible.

If your business relies on cold storage, our regular professional servicing is the single most important step you can take to keep operations smooth, efficient, and compliant.
